I could speak like the angels, know all there is to know;
I could even move the mountains to the sea.
I could give you all I own, and even give my life,
And if I did—but did not love you—I'd be lost, just like a...

*Sounding bell or a clashing cymbal,
Making noise but saying nothing,
Moving mountains and leaving souls untouched...and gaining nothing.*

Love, it is patient, yes and love is kind,
It is not jealous, love rejoices in the truth.
Love does not seek its own, and does not bear a grudge,
So hold your hands out in forgiveness and in love, or be a...

And when I was a child I acted like a child,
But as I grow I put away my childish ways.
And I will see you face to face, and I will fully know,
That with my faith, and with my hope, love will remain, not like a...
